New Dimensions in Health Care Receives National Medical Recognition for Sixth Year in A Row

Amsterdam- New Dimensions in Health Care (NDHC) is pleased to announce it has been recognized by the National Committee for Quality Assurance as a level three Patient-Centered Medical Home in 2023. The Recognition Program is built on evidence-based, nationally recognized clinical standards of care, and level three is the highest level that is awarded. New Dimensions in Health Care was first recognized by NCQA in 2014, and has been recognized at the level three designation since 2017.

“Receiving this national recognition at the level three designation for the sixth year in a row speaks volumes to the quality of services we provide to patients in the Montgomery County region and beyond,” said Jennifer Saunders, CEO of New Dimensions. “New Dimensions’ clinical staff cares for a variety of patients to ensure all members of the community are receiving the best course of patient-centered treatment.”

The Patient-Centered Medical Home model is an approach to delivering high-quality, cost-effective primary care. Using a patient-centered, culturally appropriate, and team-based approach, the PCMH model coordinates patient care across the health system. It is driven by strong relationships between the provider and the patient.

NCQA Patient-Centered Medical Home program reflects the input of the American College of Physicians (ACP), American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) and American Osteopathic Association (AOA) and others. It was developed to assess whether clinician practices are functioning as medical homes and recognize them for these efforts in coordinating care that supports access, communication, and patient involvement.

“NCQA Patient-Centered Medical Home Recognition raises the bar in defining high-quality care by emphasizing access, health information technology and coordinated care focused on patients,” said NCQA President Margaret E. O’Kane. “Recognition shows that New Dimensions in Health Care has the tools, systems, and resources to provide its patients with the right care, at the right time.”

New Dimensions offers primary medical care and dental services, and is currently accepting new patients.
